Generated 2026-11-07 from the site's name data

May every name bring you closer to the Lord.

How to use this edition

This printable edition follows the traditional 1000 Names (Sahasranama) of Kalabhairava, listing the complete name sequence preserved by this project — 1,000 numbered entries — with Devanagari, a common English spelling, the IAST transliteration, and a short English meaning for each name.

Each name also has its own page on the website, with alternate spellings and a longer explanatory note. Use the site for search and cross-references; use this file for offline reading, printing, and chanting support.

Transliteration note: the "common spelling" column uses the romanization most readers type (for example Bhairavaya), while the IAST column gives the diacritic form (Bhairavāya). Sanskrit names take several valid English spellings; the website lists them on each name page.

About the count: the Sahasranama is traditionally called the thousand names of the Lord. This edition preserves its source's full sequence of 1,000 numbered entries, including repeated names, and is titled 1000 Names for the traditional name of the text.

This is a devotional reference compiled for study. It is not a critical edition and does not replace traditional instruction or lineage guidance.
